AD&D insurance also covers the accidental loss of life. But this coverage should not be a replacement for life insurance or major medical insurance, because it provides coverage only in case of an accident. Think of it as another way to add to the coverage you may already have through other insurance plans.

You can sign up for AD&D coverage without answering any medical questions. Following a serious injury or death caused by a covered accident, you or a beneficiary you designate will receive a set amount of money. You can use this money as you see fit, such as helping to pay for expenses like childcare and education, job training, rehabilitation or trauma counseling, home alterations and vehicle modification.

No one wants to think about the impact of an unexpected accident. But if it happens, AD&D insurance pays Benefit for a covered accident, so you have one less thing to worry about during a difficult time. Be on the lookout for additional information about this coverage from your employer.

At New York Life Group Benefit Solutions, we want to help provide you with financial security and peace of mind today, so you can be better prepared for tomorrow. It's one of many ways that we're putting Benefit to work for people.
